EASTER MILLINERY.

LEADING FEATURES IN HATS, BON NETS AND TOQUES.

Colored Straws In the Ascendant-Hat Top Heavy With Flowers and Garden Truck - Novel Ribbon Bows, Feather Fantasies and Flower Mounts.

On Easter Sunday matron and maid emerge from the rest Lent gives them, like the butterfly from its chrysalis, with gowns and hats almost as brilliant as the multicolored wings of the insect. Easter fashions set at rest many of the vexatious problems of the earlier season and are awaited with interest by wom-ankind at large. Following is a condensation of an illustrated report of the Easter styles in millinery for 1897. as given in the New York Times:

Headgear this spring is by no means small. The largest hats look top heavy with flowers and "garden truck," and the bonnets and toques, although small, are so built up with sprays, flowers and ribbon bows that what they lose in width they gain in height. The time has passed when white, black or blue straws only may be bought. Today the most delicate shading is procurable. There can be nothing in the way of millinery which will be more convenient for general use than foundations of white, black or natural straws, for these may always be trimmed according to the wearer's fancy without trespassing on the original color scheme of the cos tume, but it is the introduction of red in straw, tulle, chiffon, ribbons, feathers and flowers which produces the most startling effect in headgear. The "ex clusives," however, having decided that red will be too much worn to please them, show an inclination to use gray, and the best greemed woman this spring will blossom in Quaker shades. It will be impossible for any woman to go far astray in the trimming of hats. There i but one rule, and that is, be certain to put on all the fruit, flowers, ribbons and general trimming that the hat will support.

Among the novelties introduced are bows, flower mounts and fantasies in plumes. Ribbons of plain or striped taffeta are twisted and knotted and finished with loops in bows which give often the smartness to a hat. Effective bows are made by using three or four shades of a color. Flower mounts consist of spring flowers twisted together in bunches which stand high at the side. All flowers which may be "bunched" are available for this kind of trimming. The old style wreath and spray are quite the things of the long ago.

Aigrets and ospreys are innovations in the feather department. Heron plumes and curled ospreys lead as favorites, although some of the mounts of curled cock and duck quills are used with great effect. Another plume which has appeared for the first time in a dozen years is the willow. This in feathers are allowed to hang over the sides, falling quite low. Feathers have taken on the same bright hues of flow-

As to shapes, the variety is great, and hence the rule is to choose the most becoming for the first, the most swagger for the second and the very exclusive model for the third hat. Sailor hats are as much a part of the season's fixstand comparison with the ings as the serge suit and shirt waist.

There will be a deviation, however, from their former simplicity, for a band of velvet will be used around the brim of sailors which are intended for afternoon wear, these being a little more trimmed and usually made of Cuba canvas. Toques are in great favor and are made from straw and chip. A sort of Gainsborough bat is one that is very Cottage on Magazine street in good order. Sometimes or sum of that is described as an enlarged English walking bat, except that the brim is wider and rolls at the sides. It is the placing of a long feather on the underside of the brim which gives the is the placing of a long feather on the underside of the brim which gives the hat its peculiar chic.
